EDWARDS WILL FIGHT BOOZE CHARGE

ALLEGED THAT SENATOR WAS GO-BETWEEN OF BOOTLEGGERS

Prohibition Agent Testified That He Gave the Accused $3800 for 100 Cases of Scotch Whisky—Charged That Evidence in Conspiracy is Political Frame-Up.

Senator Edward I. Edwards, of New Jersey, was flatly accused of receiving $3800 in payment for delivery of 100 cases of Scotch whisky by a witness in the Weehawken rum running trial in Jersey City, New Jersey.

Lionel Wilson, an agent of the treasury department, said he believed Senator Edwards to be the head of the bootlegging ring. Wilson was a witness in the trial of ten Weehawken policemen and two civilians.

Wilson testified that William Griffin, alleged leader of bootleggers, claimed the senator was one of the "backers" of a liquor smuggling ring. Another agent heard the accusation, Wilson said.

The witness told of visiting Griffin in an office in the First National Bank building. Edwards is president of the bank and has an office in the building.

Under direct examination by Colonel George T. Vickers, special prosecutor, the witness expressed belief that Senator Edwards was "directing head of the bootleg ring." Wilson testified he had been in Edwards' office when money was paid to the senator—$3800 for 100 cases of Scotch.

"In November, I called at Senator Edwards' home by appointment," the witness declared, despite frantic objections by defense counsel, which were overruled.

"I met Senator Edwards and was with him for two hours. Griffin was present. I made arrangements to have 100 cases of Scotch delivered. After my arrangements with Senator Edwards at his home in Caldwell, New Jersey, I and my partner, Charles Hurlbut, called at his bank, saw Senator Edwards and, in my presence Hurlbut handed the senator $3800 for 100 cases of Scotch."

Charles L. Hurlbut, a general prohibition agent under Division Chief Merrick in New York, testified that on November 13, 1923, he had given Senator Edwards $3800, which was placed in escrow to be held for payment to Griffin for Scotch whisky to be delivered to him. Griffin became suspicious, the witness said, and the deal did not go thru and the money was returned. Lionel Wilson, another agent corroborated Hurlbut's testimony.

Hurlbut said that he and Lionel Wilson called on Senator Edwards and continued:

"We talked liquor, the quality of liquor and the question of Griffin's report," Edwards assured us that Griffin was a "straight shooter" and a "wise boy."

"Then," said Hurlbut, "he gave Edwards $3800 in currency, the price of 100 cases of Scotch whisky, to be held in escrow for payment to Griffin on delivery of the contraband." The senator, he said, counted the money over, placed it in an envelope, sealed it, had Hurlbut write his name on it and gave the deposit into the charge of the bank cashier. Hurlbut said that he and Wilson then went to Griffin's offices, which are on the second floor of the bank.

John Milton, prosecuting attorney, said that he would "give very serious consideration" to the question of presenting to a grand jury the evidence implicating Senator Edwards.

Senator Edwards announced he would go to New Jersey to testify in the rum cases in which his name was mentioned, "any time they want me to."

Edwards charged that the evidence relating to his alleged part in a booze conspiracy was a "political frame-up."

When shown the testimony of a government agent, who said he paid the $3800 in cash in an alleged liquor deal Edwards said:

"I won't say anything about that man's story. Let him lie. They can't hurt me. I'll have my say at the proper time."

Some of Edwards' friends in the senate declared he had expected some effort to discredit his stand against prohibition.

HEN IS 23 YEARS OLD

The oldest hen in the world is owned by Miss Emma Larson of Galva, Ill. This ancient fowl is in her twenty-third year, and was raised from an egg by the owner, who is thus able to furnish absolute proof of the age of this long-lived bird. The normal life of a chicken is 12 years. "Little Old Lady," as her owner calls her, is almost blind but has a good appetite and bids fair to live a year or two longer.

GOES TO LIVERPOOL.

It's a long stretch between being the carrier boy on a daily paper and business manager of the Goodrich Rubber company's branch in a foreign country but that position has been attained by a former Circleville boy, Heber J. Collier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Collier, of Watt street, this city.

Mr. Collier and his family was caught in the memorable earthquake in Japan several years ago. He with his wife and children escaped injury and returned home to this country. He was afterwards sent back to Yokohama, Japan, to superintend the rebuilding and establishing of another branch for this firm. Later he came back to this country and established a branch for his firm at Kitchener, Canada. On February 7, accompanied by his family he will take a steamer for England, and will be manager of the Liverpool, England, branch. Mr. Collier has been connected also with the Paris, French branch of the firm. He is one of the company's most valued employees and draws a salary of $7000 yearly.

J. G. Bowman and daughter, Miss Bessie, spent the day in Columbus.

GET NEW TAGS BY SATURDAY

Bad Weather Makes It Impossible for Some Motorists to Secure Tags.

All auto tags will be good until Saturday morning, so says Chief Warner. The bad weather the last day or two has prevented many owners from getting to the registrar to secure the 1925 plates, but this extension will be good only until Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. So, if you have not already secured your plates for this year, leave your machine in the garage Saturday or it may be an expensive drive.

Three days' grace has been granted local motorists by Police Chief Warner when Secretary of State Brown said variations in enforcement of the order concerning licenses might be made in accordance with sectional emergencies.

Legal time for discarding old licenses was at midnight Tuesday night and the motorists using the 1924 tags will be arrested in many other sections of Ohio.

While no arrests will be made by police today, they have been instructed to warn motorists to obtain tags. At 7 a. m., Saturday, according to present instructions, they will start arresting. Maximum penalty is $50 and costs.

FRANKLIN STREET TO BE IMPROVED.

Seven construction companies bids were opened by the city auditor and director of the public service Monday on the Franklin street paving construction. The bids have not been figured out yet to the point, as to who is the lowest bidder, as gravel and brick have to be taken into consideration. The award will be made to either The Ringwald Sons Construction company or the firm of Brewer & Brewer, of Chillicothe.

The matter of the bonding company accepting the bid on bonds came up, the bonding claiming, that the city had not passed and published an ordinance for assessment. It seems this is a mistake as cities can make these assessments before or after letting contracts.

Mrs. E. A. Allen spent the day in Lancaster.

There were fifty members present. The Grange went on record as opposing the Child-Labor amendment.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF PROHIBITION AMENDMENT

Williamsport Women Render Interesting Program at Home of Rev. and Mrs. Cross and Under the Direction of Miss Drusie Heiskell—Many New Members Added to Rolls.

The monthly meeting of the Williamsport Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Rev. Mr. Ray L. Cross and Mrs. Cross in Williamsport, Thursday afternoon, January 15. There was a large attendance and much interest manifested. The president, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, presided. Miss Drusie Heiskell had charge of the program prepared by the state W. C. T. U. officers to celebrate the fifth birthday anniversary of the eighteenth amendment which brought about prohibition.

The program opened by Miss Heiskell reading a beautiful new year prayer by Mary Tarver Carroll, which was followed by reading responsively the 146th psalm. The song entitled, "Unfurl the Temperance Banner" was sung by the audience. Mrs. Marie Dunlap presided at the piano. Joint Resolution proposing an Amendment to the Constitution to the United States was read. Mrs. Minnie Briner read an article regarding the findings of Dr. Miles on the effect of 2.75 per cent alcoholic dose he found efficiency impaired on eye and hand work and decreased efficiency in continuous attention and other mental work also unsteadiness in walking or standing which are familiar signs of alcohol intoxication. Mrs. Opa Cox read an article stating that Mr. J. Baird Even, an English visitor to this country said in all his visits thru the Bowery and other parts of New York and during his stay in Philadelphia, he saw only two drunken men. Miss Jones read an article regarding Prohibition in Kansas. They have a circular entitled "Kansas Victory Message to the World," proclaiming the success of legislation which forever barred intoxicating liquor from this state's boundaries. This document is signed among others by Henry J. Allen, former governor of Kansas, Jonathan M. Davis, the present governor and Victor Murdock. Miss Clara Welch read an article entitled "Lincoln's Appeal for Law." Let every American, every lover of liberty, every well wisher to his posterity, swear by the blood of revolution, never to violate in the least particular the laws of the country and never to tolerate their violation by others.

Mrs. Earl Baker contributed a very pretty piano solo. Mrs. Lucy B. Price, county president, gave a splendid report of the fiftieth anniversary convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which was held recently in the Medinah temple in Chicago. This convention is termed the Jubilee convention, from which we quote the following "Hold high your torch," the slogan of the jubilee convention. Their goal, World Prohibition, World Purity and World Peace. The spirit of the jubilee was in the air when more than a thousand delegates and visitors from all parts of the United States and many from foreign countries met in the red room of the Hotel LaSalle for the jubilee dinner, the big social event of the convention. The national, state and county officers, distinguished visitors and speakers were seated at the main table where crystal candles reflected golden gleams from the decorations, yellow flowers massed in baskets and bowls and two golden cakes with fifty yellow candles, called attention to the fiftieth birthday anniversary of the National W. C. T. U.

The greetings of the city of Chicago were extended by Miss Mary McDowell, the city's first woman commissioner of public welfare and a member of the mayor's cabinet. The tenor of the message brought by the overseas delegates was congratulatory for the accomplishments of the past fifty years coupled with an appeal to "Hold Fast America Your Prohibition Law, for our Sake." No event of the great convention which fairly abounded in spectacular events won such universal praise as did the presentation of the pageant—Pictures of Fifty Years, a history in song and story of a great world movement of federated women, arranged and produced for the golden jubilee of the National W. C. T. U. by Pearle Aikin Smith, dean of women of the school of Speech of Northwestern university. By cooperating in this pageant the university paid special tribute to the first dean of women, Frances E. Willard. The opportunity of visiting Evanston, the home for so many years of Frances E. Willard and now the home of the world's and national president and the national W. C. T. U. headquarters was eagerly anticipated by delegates and visitors. The trip was in very truth a pilgrimage to a sacred shrine and over a thousand wended their way to this mecca of white ribboners, from two to six o'clock. For this occasion all Evanston kept open house for the jubilee guests. Northwestern university women served tea at Willard hall. The Woman's club of Evanston received informally at its spacious club house. The Women's Union of Frances Willard church received at the First Methodist church. Two hundred thousand new members have been added to the membership roll of the W. C. T. U., in the past five years.

Anna Adams Gordon, national president, announced in her jubilee message that the cause of the W. C. T. U. was in its infancy. In the half century ahead comes a greater task to be covered with greater triumphs.

Mrs. Price was given a rising vote of thanks for her wonderful report. The program closed with the benediction. During the social period which followed the hostess and her assistants served appetizing refreshments.

Among the visitors in attendance were Mrs. E. L. Price and Mrs. S. W. Dunlap, of Circleville.

According to Herodotus, the Egyptians shaved continually, and only let the hair and beard grow when they were in mourning. The barber of the ancient Egyptians was known as the haq. He employed various instruments. A razor sometimes in the shape of a small short hatchet with a recurved handle, and other instruments shaped like a knife were most generally used.

Rosette Disease Affecting Wheat
Malady Has Been Confined to Two States; Cause Not Determined.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A disease of winter wheat known as Rosette disease because of the excessive tillering in the spring and because the affected plants remain in the rosette stage an unusually long time, has appeared in Illinois and Indiana in infested fields every year since its first discovery in 1910. For several years the disease took great tolls of the wheat crop in certain sections of Illinois and Indiana, says the United States Department of Agriculture. So far as is known, however, the disease has not been located in any other section of this country. The cause of the Rosette disease has not yet been fully determined, but certain control measures have been worked out by the department.

May Ruin Affected Crop.
Farmers' Bulletin 1414 has been issued by the department, covering the subject thoroughly. According to the bulletin, where conditions are favorable for its development, the Rosette disease may ruin the affected crop. Usually, however, the disease occurs in more or less irregular, scattered spots of different sizes. In all except the most severely affected fields, the reduction in yield has been less than 20 per cent.

The disease is recognized in the field in the spring by stunted and rosetted plants and by the bunchy, dying plants in the disease spots. All plants affected with this disease produce tillers excessively and look bunchy. At first they are dull blue in color, but they subsequently turn brown and often die.

In late spring, this disease may be confused with Hessian fly injury. In both cases the color of the affected plants is about the same. The Rosette disease, however, shows no symptoms in the fall, while the fly causes marked injury. Later, the Rosette-disposed plants may be distinguished by the much greater tendency to tiller.
Progress With Control Measures.
Various control measures for the disease have been studied and tested, and important progress has been made. It is known that the soil carries the causal factors, whatever they may be. Attempts to control the disease on infested land by seed treatment, therefore, are useless. Numerous varieties have been studied to determine their relative resistance to the disease. Red Wave, Early May, Shepherd, and Turkey are particularly immune. The general use of these immune varieties on infested land is now serving to control the disease perfectly.

A copy of the bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Sour Milk of Immense Value to Poultry Raiser
It is at least possible to reduce the amount of meat scrap in the mash ration if you keep sour milk or buttermilk before the hens at all times. Some have found it possible to do away with the meat scrap entirely, but this is not always a success in cases where it has been tried. It is best to reduce it to about one-half to one-third of the regular quantity called for in the mash, and then allow the sour milk or buttermilk for the hens.
Entirely aside from the food value in the milk, there seems to be a regulative quality to the sour milk. The fowls will remain healthier if given the milk at all times. It stimulates a healthy appetite, particularly for the laying mash. The sour milk seems to do away almost entirely with the difficulties generally traceable to close confinement, such as the clogging of the digestive organs, and for that reason, particularly for flocks in winter quarters, it is hard to overestimate the value of an abundant supply of sour skim milk.

United States Leads in Machinery on the Farm
Farming leads all industries as a user of power and, in turn, the American farmer has more power and machinery at his command than the farmer of any other country, according to E. W. Lehmann, University of Illinois. Most of the machines of production for the farm have been developed during the last 75 years, and in that time the farmer has changed from "the man with a hoe" to a user of power and a large scale producer.
The last twenty-five years especially have seen a marked increase in the use of machinery and mechanical power on the farm.

Garden Recreation
The American people spend millions of dollars annually in recreation. They go on vacations in order to be better fitted to do their work when they return. Others who cannot afford the expense of a vacation trip often find recreation and daily change of scene in their own dooryard, either with flowers or with a vegetable garden in which they draw a supply of fresh and wholesome food.

Flashlight Aids Seamstress
After wearing out her patience in threading the needle of her sewing machine, an ingenious housekeeper in Portsmouth, Ohio, attached a flashlight to the arm of the machine, and thus ended her troubles, says Popular Science Monthly. The light was clamped to the machine with a strap of brass and a pair of bolts and wing-nuts in a position that throws the needle into silhouette when the light is turned on.

Must Keep Barrel Clean
The National Rifle association says that after the residue of smokeless powder in a gun barrel has been allowed to remain and the barrel has become pitted, nothing can be done to remedy the condition. Rifles and pistols should be cleaned immediately after firing. It is best to swab the barrel with warm water and dry carefully, then apply a heavy grease to prevent rust.

The curious appearance that the bald head and neck of the bald ibis gives is heightened by the bright red coloring of the top of the head and the pale blue of the neck and sides of the head, says Nature Magazine. How to Decorate Woman's Neckline

High Collar Attracts Attention to Size of Neck—Frills and Laces.

Necklines attract lines not only for blouses and dresses, but also for the collars and frills and other accessories. The principles that apply to one hold good for all, says a writer in the Kansas City Star.

The high collar is once more coming into its own, and a very becoming style it is, if used wisely. But let us think of its effects before accepting it entirely. A high collar tends to call attention to the size of the neck, and it has a way of adding fullness to the face. Since the face is more prominent than the neck, the high collar is a boon to the woman whose face is too thin.

Under its influence, or to be strictly accurate, above its influence, the cheeks seem fuller. Thus it helps to create an appearance of health and well being. But it is certainly no friend to the stout woman, for it makes her neck seem thicker and shorter, and it has a malicious way of adding roundness to her face. If she will wear a high neckline, this stout woman should at least keep her collar as low as possible.

The one place where the stout woman can stand a little height is at the back of her neck, because with obesity there frequently comes a fullness at the back of the neck that should be concealed.

In connection with neckwear, a point to remember is that the woman whose neck is too thick should in buying frills or lace select a very soft lace or frill that blends with rather than contrasts with the dress or blouse with which it is to be worn. Long straight lines are also more favorable to this type than the short lines.

Directly opposed to the large woman with a short thick neck is the thin woman with prominent collarbones. She should look gratefully on the high collar that covers her neck and hides its emaciation. Also, this type should avoid as much as possible the round-necked dress or blouse that displays too prominently a neck that should be concealed. Her wiser choice is a square neck cut in close.

Neckwear accessories, such as frills and laces, must not be selected without thought as to their color. The woman whose skin is soft and white need not fear that white at her neck will have a harmful effect on the skin, but the woman with a yellowish or brownish neck should most surely avoid pure white that will form a contrast. Ecrú and cream offer greater possibilities for her.

One final point—a neckline always should be lower in the front than in the back. A low-necked dress should not be allowed to slip back.

Empire Style Bracelet Twines About Her Arm

The newest bracelets are those that twine about the upper arm and finish in an ornament lying flat against the arm. The inspiration is from the gorgeous Empire bracelets, made of linked coral or of wrought gold to form a snake.

Happy the woman who can discover one of these in the antique jewelry shops, but they are very rare. Thus the modern jeweler has set themselves to imitating the twining form of these bracelets without attempting to imitate the Empire motifs of acanthus leaves which go to finish them, substituting a leaf more natural, more closely imitating one of the laurel, rose or artichoke leaves of today.

HARTMAN THEATER

Immediately following her very successful season in New York in the same play, Arthur Hopkins will present Ethel Barrymore at the Hartman theater, Columbus, for three days beginning next Monday, January 19, in Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's masterpiece, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Miss Barrymore's many friends will be keenly interested in her appearance and the role of Paula that she has in this new play is another portrait to add to the many she has already portrayed.

The role of Paula in this famous play is said to crown Miss Barrymore's success as a star. The play has been staged by Mr. Hopkins himself and has been given unusual settings and scenes. Miss Barrymore is supported by a cast of equal caliber, which includes Henry Daniell, Lionel Pape, J. Colvin Dunn and Margot Kelly. There will be a matinee Wednesday. Mail orders now.

The last half of next week starting Thursday, January 22, thru Saturday, will bring another celebrated star to the Hartman theater—Jane Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet" and in "The Depths" a new play by Dr. Hane Mueller. Miss Cowl will be seen in "Romeo and Juliet," in which she has created such a sensation all over the country, on Thursday and Friday nights and on Saturday afternoon and in "The Depths" on Saturday night. With her will be seen Rollo Peters, as "Romeo" and also with her in "The Depths" besides a supporting cast that has been with her constantly for years. Mr. Peters is one of the best actors of the present day.

There has been an unusually heavy advance sale for both of these stars. It would be advisable to secure seats soon. There will be a Wednesday matinee of Barrymore and a Saturday matinee of Cowl in "Romeo and Juliet."

FIRST BILL TO BE PASSED BY LEGISLATURE.

The first bill to be voted on by the present legislature was passed by the house Tuesday. It was introduced by John L. May, representative from this county.

It was an enabling act to authorize the trustees of Darby township, to pay G. M. Garrison, $130.24 for lumber sold the board while he was a member four years ago. Only one vote was cast against the bill, Representative Snow of Cleveland, opposing it. The bill now goes to the senate.

Of the Same Family

The "timber" wolf is one found in the northeastern part of the United States, while the "loafer" wolf inhabits regions in the vicinity of Arizona. These may be regarded as the same type, the only difference being in the terms applied to them in various parts of the country.

Lute and Guitar

The lute is a stringed musical instrument of the guitar family. The formal difference between a lute and a guitar is to be found in the back, which in the lute is pear-shaped and in the guitar is flat. The lute is without ribs, which are essential to the framing of the guitar.

ZULU GIRLS GO TO THE "ALTAR" YOUNG

Marriageable Maidens Pair for in Cattle.

When a Zulu girl goes courting, she wears her mother's kilt—for the excellent reason that hitherto she has worn no clothes at all, writes Grace L. Morrow, a few anklets and armlets, a "sporram" of beads, constituting her whole attire.

In Zululand, just north of Natal, girls must marry early to replenish the cattle kraals. The maturity of a girl is celebrated by a "coming-out" party, her friends visit her, and a goat is killed and eaten. Henceforth she is an "Intombi," a marriageable young woman.

In the days of the terrible "Chaka," the Zulu Napoleon, they were a well-trained, disciplined people, and could easily exterminate the other tribes. Men were conscripted for military service, and could not marry until the chief permitted it.

When the cattle are scarce, all the marriageable "Intombi" are gathered into the chief's kraal, and set to re-hatch the huts, and make new sleeping mats. They probably have their little flirtations like girls of a whiter complexion, which all the Zulu matrons watch complacently. Meanwhile the bargaining for the brides proceeds. So many cattle down, so many to be paid hereafter.

After the marriages are arranged, all bargaining completed, the bride-elect begins the courtship. Donning her mother's kilt and accompanied by a younger girl, she goes to the hut where her "intended" is staying and asks for him by name, but cannot be induced to enter on this first visit.

Again she visits the beehive hut, and this time, if sufficiently well bribed by presents and promises, she will enter. In this kind of advances and retreats three weeks are passed before the marriage is consummated.

In the meantime, assisted by the women of the kraal, she is growing the marriage headdress, which once on is worn for life. Into her tight curls are woven, day by day, coconut fiber and yellow clay, until a huge hourglass-shaped erection begins to form on her head.

For three weeks after marriage the bride is excused from all work, but after that she becomes more or less the drudge of the kraal, doing chores for every one.

When a child is born, it is named after some current event. If born on a journey it will be christened after the river, the sea, or a moorland path. But if born during a smallpox epidemic, the unfortunate child may be labeled for life with such a name as "Nomjuya"—vaccination.

For Safety at Sea

E. F. Spanner, British ship construction specialist, would reduce the damage from ramming in collisions by building ships with "soft ends." Mr. Spanner advocates using vertical instead of horizontal plates for the bow structure, with the lines of weakness formed by the joints of the shell and deck plating arranged in such a way that these joints would fall in a more or less predetermined way in case of collision. The resistance to shearing offered by the fastenings in the laps and other joints would be such that the gradual overcoming of this resistance and the crushing back of the bow structure would absorb the energy of the motion of the ramming ship so that she would be brought to a stop without piercing the side of the vessel.

Rome to Have Subway

The royal commissioner in charge of the city administration in Rome has approved in principle plans submitted by an Italian-French group which is seeking a subway concession. The proposals submitted cover the construction of two underground lines which will connect districts between which the traffic is especially heavy, the routes having been chosen entirely with a view to affording relief where it is most needed regardless of the heavy expense that this will entail. The narrow streets and congested traffic in Rome make the construction of a subway especially desirable, as the transportation problem will continue to become more difficult as the population increases.

Independent Poodle

Somebody's little poodle held up a south-bound passenger train on the Westfield bridge. The men in the cab saw the dog walking along the tracks. The locomotive whistles made no difference and the brakes were applied by the humane crew. The train came to a stop on the bridge. Just then the poodle decided it had gone far enough in that direction, anyway, and leisurely retraced its steps, passing under the entire train and ambled off the bridge while the passengers were puzzling over the delay.—Boston Globe.

Saving Lumber

Metal nail collars are now used to save the lumber lost by splitting when temporary structures are being torn down, and the time lost in pulling recalcitrant nails. Before the nail is driven, one of the collars is slipped over it, preventing it from entering the wood quite all the way. Thus a hammer claw can be slipped under the nail head, removing the nail easily. It is claimed that from 30 to 50 per cent of the time heretofore required for dismantling scaffolding can be saved by use of this invention.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

TEAR-GAS RESORTED TO BY POLICE

To Break Up Anti-Catholic Meeting—Several Injured In Panic Which Resulted.

Norwood, O., Jan. 19.—Half a dozen women were under the care of physicians today as a result of injuries received when a tear-gas bomb, set off by police, caused a panic in an anti-Catholic meeting last night.

Police attempted to break up the meeting after a citizens' committee had protested against the speech of Helen S. Jackson, Toledo. Claiming to have been a Catholic nun, she was telling of the alleged abuses she suffered in a convent.

The crowd, mostly women, refused to vacate the hall when police ordered them out. Several cries of "lynch the police" were heard.

When the tear-bomb was released someone mistook it for smoke and shouted fire. The panic resulted.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

A goodly number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Karshner of Pickaway township with well filled baskets Saturday evening to remind Mr. and Mrs. Karshner of their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary. The guests arriving at 6:30 displayed their baskets which contained hot fried chicken, escalloped oysters, hot "dogs", celery pickles and cheese and plenty of good coffee to drink. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wilkens, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Dreisbach and daughter, Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Dreisbach and daughter, Eleanor, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dreisbach, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dreisbach and daughters, Mary Eyer and Maxine, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. George, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Ross and Misses Emma Dumm, Alice Kibler and Mary Karshner and Messrs. John Rentlinger and Thomas Wright. The evening was spent in music and singing consisting of solos, duets and quartets by Mrs. Shirley Dreisbach, Mrs. Marvin Dreisbach, Mrs. Edward Wilkens and Mrs. T. A. Ross. The guests upon departing reported having a good time and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Karshner many more anniversaries.

The Jackson township W. C. T. U. met January 14, at the home of Mrs. Ida Rader. The Victory Day program was carried out. Devotional exercises were conducted by the president, Mrs. Ida Rader, and additional readings were given by Mrs. Wayne Hoover, "Lincoln's Appeal for Law" and Mrs. George Shook read, "T. N. T. Bombs." The meeting closed after the serving of refreshments and the acquisition of a new member, Mrs. Lawrence Hoover. The February meeting place will be announced at later date.

Where Two Rivers Meet

At Khartoum, the capital of the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, the two Niles, the White and the Blue, meet. The water of the one river is of a greenish-gray color; that of the other is clear and blue, except when in flood when it gains a chocolate brown from its alluvial burden.

Art of Quoting

Italy's Chemical Industry

More than 100,000 workers are now employed in the chemical industry of Italy. In 1914 it had 50,000 workers. Capital invested has risen during the same period from $40,000,000 to $85,000,000. Advances to the American Chemical society indicate that Italy, like the United States, marched forward on its own initiative when its dyestuff supply from Germany was curtailed by the World war. Ten years ago the Italian chemical industry produced no artificial dye-stuffs or coal tar dyes. Last year it produced 2,400,000 kilograms of sulphur black, 1,000,000 kilograms of azo dyes and more than 100,000 kilograms of various basic and acid dyes. About six-tenths of the national requirement of coal tar products is now produced in Italy, which also exports some of the leading intermediates.

AMUSEMENTS

"Open All Night," the new Paramount picture, which will be shown tonight at the Met theater, is said to be something different in the line of screen entertainment. It is filled with humor and has a novel story to tell. Viola Dana, Jetta Goudal, Adolphe Menjou and Raymond Griffith are featured in the principal roles. The story was adapted to the screen by Willis Goldbeck, who wrote the scenario for "Scaramouche." Paul Bern directed the picture as his first production for Paramount. Paul Morand, the French novelist, is the author. The scenes are laid in Paris, and all the action takes place in less than twenty-four hours.

Unique? That doesn't half describe it. With an unusually entertaining plot revolving about the annual Six-Day Bike Race in Paris, "Open All Night" is a real screen novelty if there ever was one. Maurice B. Flynn, Gale Henry, Jack Giddings, Sam Appel and many others appear in the supporting cast.

"Open All Night" relates the story of a beautiful young society woman and her efforts to break down the monotonous routine of her sheltered life.

Viola Dana's piquant personality is particularly fascinating in the role of the pampered wife. Opposite her, in the role of the too polished, too sophisticated husband, is Adolphe Menjou.

"No screen actor today is better fitted to portray this character than Menjou," declares the director. "The qualities which are responsible for his tremendous vogue are given full opportunity in this picture."

Jetta Goudal, who created a sensation in "Simon Called Peter" when it appeared on the stage, was brought to the Paramount west coast studio to play in "Open All Night." Critics who have seen the picture declare her performance of outstanding merit. Raymond Griffith, as usual, is excellent in a light comedy character. He supplies most of the laughs in the production, and there's loads of them. Flynn and the others are also well cast.

WHITE SOX
HAVE NEW MANAGER.

(Copyright 1925 by United Press.)
Edward C. Derr

(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Chicago, Ill., Jan. 20.—Chicago's White Sox should be a better ball club in 1925 than they were in 1924—they couldn't be worse.

That's about all any of the fans about this good baseball town will say about the Pale Hose and their prospects of becoming pennant chasers.

But there is one thing on which they're all agreed. They are glad Eddie Collins has been appointed manager. They feel it is a fitting reward for the sterling performances and untiring energy of this king of keystone sackers. They feel that if any man can take a bunch of second raters and pull them out of the cellar—to which the Sox fell in 1924—that man is Edward Trowbridge Collins.

As he starts his first season as manager, Collins can be thankful for three things—Harry Hooper, Bibb Falk and Johnny Mostil. This trio of outfielders wont burn up the American League but each one of them is a versatile ball player and as a group they compose an outfield which no baseball pilot would spurn. Hooper, like Collins, is getting old; but apparently he has several good seasons ahead of him. Falk and Mostil are young but not too green and should improve. They are backed up by Maury Archdeacon, a flashy performer, who may get into a great many games this year.

Relief pitchers are Lyons Mangum, Blankenship and little Mike Cven-gros.

With several promising rookies Manager Collins is expected to finish much higher in the race than the team did in 1924.

No Words Wasted.

Where the Folly Lies.

It is hardly ever foolish to do a thing because we want to do it. The folly lies in doing a thing because other people think we ought to want to do it, and we do not.

AUTOMOBILE ARRANGED FOR CUTTING WOOD

B. M. Taylor of San Francisco, has devised a way to cut up enough cordwood in a couple of hours to last him during the entire cold spell. The apparatus is comparatively simple. A stout rigid wooden stand is built for the saw and is connected up by a leather belt running from the rear wheel of the car to the pulley. To attach the belt it is first necessary to remove the rear fender, jack up the wheel, take off the tire and rim and substitute a rim padded with leather so that the belt will adhere to the wheel as it revolves. The motor is speeded up to from 20 to 25 miles an hour in high gear and the wheel jacked up from the floor is the only one that will go into motion which develops a speed of 1,800 to 2,000 revolutions a minute.

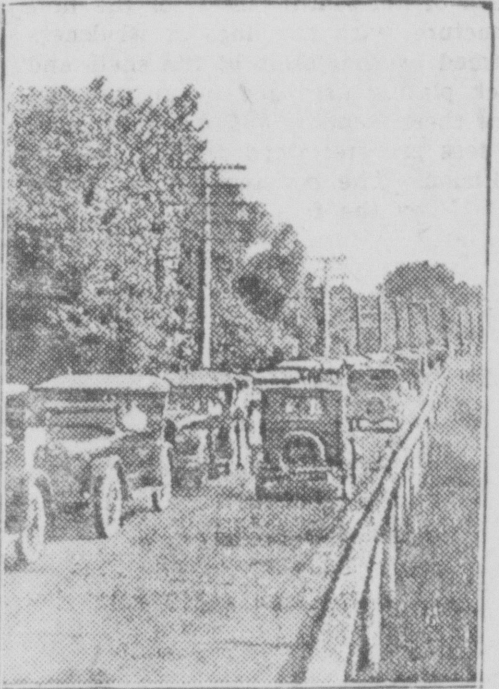

MORE AND WIDER ROADS DEMANDED

System That Few Years Ago Appeared Ample Is Now Entirely Inadequate.

Public need for more and wider roads is constantly growing more acute. To prove it, try to drive in or out of any sizable town. The lanes are crowded with 15,000,000 motor vehicles. In 1923 there were 4,000,000 new cars added to the congestion and less than 7,000 miles of paved road added. The first part of 1924, factories were turning out 30 miles of motor cars a day as against 25 miles of concrete for them to drive over.

Road System Too Small.

It would seem that the dream of a road system that a few years ago appeared ample was too small. Present road conditions forecast a huge widening program as well as parallel roads to those that are now overburdened with traffic. All along, the thought has been that in an automotive way, the country had almost attained its full growth but still the factories are hard put in normal times to meet the orders that are placed.

It is a fairly easy matter to get a car. Prices have been reduced and payments made easy. Spot delivery is about the only thing that cannot be arranged, but the purchaser who is willing to wait a few weeks can be a motorist. And if a new car is not thought necessary and a used car can be made to serve, one can be picked up in the same time that it takes to buy a hat or a pair of shoes.

Buying Road Not Easy.

But buying a new road is not so simple. It is a matter that must pass through many hands and receive many approvals after many delays. After it is all settled and decided on, there is an immense amount of work to be done for roads are manufactured on specific order—they cannot be turned out in advance and stored against future need.

The army of "road wanters" has excellent officers in its highway officials, but it needs more civilian officers and workers—men and women who are employed in stores, on farms, in shops and offices who have vision of what is needed and who are willing to speed up the work by working in whatever way is possible or convenient to expedite the road-building program.

A most annoying rattle is sometimes caused by a spare wheel carried on a bracket attached to the body of a car. This equipment should be kept tightened at all times.

GOVERNMENT OPERATION OF RAILROADS IS EXPENSIVE

By Dale Van Svey
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)
Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Government operations of railroads during the war caused the nation a net loss of $1,674,500,000 Director General of Railroads Davis reported to President Coolidge today in a final summary of the financial results of the experiment.

The government incurred a flat operating loss of $1,123,500,000 during the 26 months of government control, an additional cost of $536,000,000 during the ensuing six months of the guaranty period and finally reimbursed small connecting roads at a cost of $15,000,000.

NEW YORK JOURNAL
A brilliant audience in a frenzy of appreciations cheered, applauded, and grew rhapsodic over the most magnificent production yet presented on the screen. As a spectacle it is stupendously breath taking, and for dramatic strength it has a crescendo of power that moves with a force dynamically compelling. The production is prodigious. I have never seen or expect to see, another one equaling this photoplay in artistry, sheer beauty and strength.

Compliments From Boys

The compliment paid by Leslie Stephen, when a boy, to his mother is well known. The father was what in America would be called a "grouch." When he had vetoed some family excursion the mother exclaimed: "Did you ever know your father to do anything just because it was pleasant?"

"Yes, mother, once—when he married you!"

This pretty speech is matched by one in Cornelia Stratton Parker's book, "Ports and Happy Places." Mrs. Parker had taken her nine-year-old son on a pilgrimage to see his birthplace. He was surprised to find how attractive the house was. He gazed at it long and earnestly, then turned to his mother and said: "I can't tell you how much I thank you and dad for letting me be born in such a nice place."—From the Outlook.

Butchers Taught Trade

London now has a Meat Trades "university." Here is taught by practical and fully competent instructors the whole duty of butchers—from animal physiology and hygiene to shop management and the making of sausages. Other trades organizations are co-operating with the London county council to incorporate as the Smithfield institute. There will be a junior course for boys who have just entered or intend to enter the trade, and a senior course to enable men to study the more advanced side of their work. There are no fees for juniors, and fees for other courses are from 75 cents to $2.50 a session.

They All Talk

A young man talks with pleasure, and an old man talks with ease; an orator talks like some men walk—six days, go as you please.

The preacher talks of sins and things, of hell's eternal fury; the lawyer hurls his jawbone at a mad but helpless jury.

Thus each one talks and talks and talks, each of his own speech proudest, forgetful of the patent fact that it's money that talks loudest.—"A. P." in Boston Transcript.

DIGNITY OF POLICE FORCE MUCH JARRED*Whole Department Placed in Stocks by Revelers.

It happened in Mapiri, a little mud-and-cane town from which an exploring expedition under my command was to hop off into the uncharted interior of Bolivia. In approaching the town a wild chorus of yells, howls, shrieks and bangs came to greet me long before the place could be seen. As I reached its outskirts something soft and warm and unpleasant, which caused my horse to snort and caper, flew over the churchyard wall and slapped my face. Wiping my cheek, and wondering what it all could mean, I rounded a corner—and saw.

An extraordinary sight it was. The day was one of their numerous national fiestas. In addition to this a party of natives, returned with accumulated wages from a long river trip, had "bought the town." White rum, which is practically pure alcohol, was on limitless tap for all who wished; and the wish was practically unanimous; not one dissenting voice was raised.

This rum accounted for the yells. The bangs were owing to small sticks of dynamite which were used as a substitute for firecrackers. One of the Indians—the town was inhabited by Indians and half-breeds—had lighted a joy-stick and then, tangling his legs, had pitched forward. Forgetting the dynamite with its sizzling fuse, he decided to take a nap where he lay. It was a part of him that had slapped my face.

This, and many other things, would not have happened had the police force been functioning, but it—or rather, he—was not. The would-be revelers had seen to that. This man was the entire police force from chief down. So, wishing to proceed with their festivities undisturbed, the populace "jumped" him from behind, overpowered him by force of numbers and bore him, fighting like a wildcat, to the contrivance that served them for a jail.

This was a pair of stocks—the only pair I ever saw in active use. Clad in a red-piped pair of uniform trousers, a fragmentary shirt and an air of intense disgust, there he was sitting when I appeared; his bare feet, appearing disproportionately large on account of their undue prominence, sticking out before him. So enraged was he at the supposedly "better element" of townsfolk for allowing him to be placed in such a position—and small blame to him—that he resigned by the simplest process of joining my expedition.—Major Wolcott Le Clear Beard in the Police Magazine.

KEEPING WELLWHAT CAUSES GALL STONES?

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

MOST women over forty have gallstones. They are about three times as common in women as in men. They are most frequently found between fifty and sixty.

Gallstones are found in the gallbladder, a pear-shaped sac which is the overflow tank of the liver. In it the surplus bile, secreted by the liver, is stored until it is needed. If the lining of this tank becomes irritated and the bile in the tank becomes too thick, then the mucus secreted by the inflamed membrane unites with the thickened bile to form solid masses. It is claimed by some physiologists that the starting point of a gallstone is always a bunch of germs which have gotten into the gallbladder, started an inflammation of the lining and then become the center around which the gallstone forms.

Some gallstones are soft, others are hard. Some are very small, no larger than a pinhead, others may be so large as to fill the whole gallbladder. When a gallstone starts it grows like a snowball, but in layers. If a number start about the same time and grow with equal rapidity, they are squeezed on each other by the elastic pressure of the gallbladder and so have facets or sides.

Does the infection and inflammation of the gallbladder cause the gallstones or do the scratching and irritation of the gallstones cause the inflammation? Which existed first, the fowl or the egg?

Gallstones themselves do no harm. Probably every one past forty has one or more and never knows it. It is only when they become too large or too numerous or when they try to get out through the duct or canal into the small intestine that they cause pain, or by plugging up the canal and so preventing the flow of bile, they cause jaundice. Then they must be removed.

What causes them? Two things, which are responsible for a good share of human ills. Eating too much and not working enough.

Sugar in History

The Department of Agriculture says that sugar from the sugar cane was probably known in China 2,000 years before it was used in Europe. Several centuries before Christ Greek physicians called sugar by the name of "Indian salt" and a "honey made from reeds." When merchants began to trade in the Indies sugar was included among the spices, perfumes and other rare and costly things carried to the western countries of Europe. At this time it was used exclusively in the preparation of medicines. When sugar was first introduced as a food it was regarded with suspicion. It was said to be heating, to be bad for the lungs and to cause apoplexy.

Safety Lessons Learned

Saving the lives of 769 children of school age is credited to safety instructions in the Detroit schools for the five years, 1919 to 1923, inclusive. Decrease in child fatalities has been from 1.64 a thousand in 1919 to .78 in 1923, a drop of more than 50 per cent; in relation to automobile registration the decrease has been from .85 a thousand in 1919 to .33 in 1923; on the basis of total population the decrease has been from .22 a thousand to .18 a thousand.

Indian Monsoons

The heavy rainfall in India is caused by the monsoons or winds blowing part of the year from one direction, alternating with winds from the opposite direction. The southwest monsoon blows from April to September and is surcharged with vapor from the Indian ocean. It condenses in torrents on the heights of the Chhats and forms the rivers which flow to the east.

FIND RELICS OF VEGETARIAN RACE

Interesting Discovery Made in Mammoth Cave.

Louisville, Ky.—Relics of an ancient vegetarian race have been found in one of the subterranean chambers of the Mammoth Cave area. It is asserted in reports issued here by three engineers of the Louisville Gas and Electric Co., R. B. Anderson, Aaron Baer and Roy Hunt, who made the discovery while exploring the cave to decide upon a location for a proposed power dam.

Mr. Anderson's report says in part: "Salts cave (where the relics were found) was at one time inhabited by a race of people who no doubt preceded the Indians. Indications show there must have been a large tribe or colony living here for a great length of time. Throughout the entire cave the walls are blackened with soot from the many fires that burned during the stay of these people.

"The floor and the crevices between the broken rock are filled with twigs and bark, which fell off as they dragged their firewood through the cave. You may question the fact that any wood left many hundreds of years ago would still be preserved, but the cave is very dry. The temperature probably is a little above 54 degrees Fahrenheit, and even now crystals of saltpeter are being deposited on the walls, and the presence of this preserving salt in the atmosphere no doubt has made possible the remarkable preservation of things found in the cave.

"Some of the evidence leading to the belief that this people preceded the Indians is that proofs have been established that they were entirely vegetable-eating people, quite contrary to the Indians.

"Many moccasins have been found. These are made of woven grass and not of animal skins, as were those of the Indians. A few quilts or blankets have also been found, made from the same woven grass. Had they killed animals for food they undoubtedly would have used the more serviceable and much warmer skins for their wearing apparel, especially when there was so much saltpeter at hand to cure the skins.

"No bones or teeth of animals have been found among the relics. This race probably inhabited this cave before the chestnut tree was native to this part of the country, as hulls of all nuts now growing were found in the cave with the exception of the chestnut. Many crude instruments have been found, such as stone axes and wooden bowls, hollowed out by fire."

KEEPING WELL

WHY MEN CRACK

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

IN a most interesting book, recently published, "Behind the Scenes in Politics," the author tells many secrets of persons and events in the big political game. One chapter he calls "Why Men Crack."

He says: "I have drawn up a list of 150 men I have known who had a good chance to reach the top and who have sunk and are all through. I have checked off the list with the various causes which I believe make men crack and the result is as I expected. Ninety-seven of these men fell down because of lack of health. A few of these were sudden breakdowns. One promising playwright was hit by tuberculosis. One man of first rank promise in national affairs was taken to the side lines on account of Bright's disease. Two coming bankers were driven into retirement by the same affliction. A few had their health blown up with a sudden loud bang.

"But that is not the rule. Most men who crack because of lack of health crack slowly and noiselessly. The picture is the tragic one, of men who at thirty or forty were off the ground and had shown speed and direction. At forty-five, their engines were missing fire; at fifty, they were looking for a landing place, and at fifty-five they are down on their rollers for good.

"What's the matter with them? If a doctor looked them over he'd say, 'Why didn't you come to me 25 years ago? I can't make you over. You're like an old watch. There's nothing particular the matter with you but everything is wrong. You've worn out your machinery. You have over-eaten and plugged your body with stimulants, not only tobacco and alcohol but caffeine and sugar. You have slept with your mouth open and let months go by when your skin has never been wet with sweat. You have let your organs slip down, until your chest and your stomach have swapped girths. You don't drink enough water. You take cathartics. You neglect your teeth. On top of everything else, you have been irregular. You take irregular meals, irregular sleep, irregular work, irregular play. All your machinery is twisted. You never would have neglected yourself as you have neglected yourself. Now you're paying for it.'"

This writer is not a doctor; he's not a health faddist. He is a practical, cold-blooded politician, telling why many men of promise fail at the critical period.

When are you going to crack? That depends on how you are living now.

College Course Proved Much Too Successful

The Man and the Girl loved one another very dearly. But, alas! though rich in love and good looks, they were poor in the currency demanded by the butcher, the baker and the candlestick combine.

So the man said, "Beloved, I love you too much to ask you to share a life of penury. I will away to a distant colony, where I will work hard and acquire much wealth. Then I will return and we will be married and live happy ever after."

So the man departed.

Now, the Girl was a practical nature, and she said to herself: "I, too, will endeavor to make some money."

So she considered what money-making pursuit she might follow, and she determined to start a correspondence college for women.

She advertised largely in the press, assuring her sisters that she could teach them "How to be Beautiful," "The Art of Fascinating Men," "How to Win and Keep a Husband," and many other subtleties.

And before long she realized that she was a success, and that her wealth was very considerable.

Accordingly she wrote to her Man: "Come home, I have more than enough for both of us."

But he came not. For among the pupils of the correspondence college had been one living in that distant colony whither he had gone. She had found the courses of very great merit—for she had learned how to be beautiful, she had fascinated the Girl's man, she had won him, and there is no reason to suppose that she had not also learned how to keep him.—London Passing Show.

Honest Deed Saved Her

After Miss Marie Taylor, a waitress, pleaded guilty in special sessions court to stealing a vanity case worth $13.89 from a department store the court suspended sentence when he learned her record, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Two years ago, Probation Officer William Buss said, Miss Taylor picked up a package containing $14,000 a careless customer had left in a restaurant where she worked. She turned it over to the manager and it was soon restored to the owner.

May Reproduce Old Mill

The Philadelphia chapter of the Society of Colonial Dames of America has submitted to many organizations in Pennsylvania a plan to erect on the original site a replica of "The Old Swede's Mill," the first mechanical enterprise to be set up in that highly industrialized region. The original structure says the Detroit News, was built by direction of Governor Printz, in 1646, eight years after the first Swedish colonist arrived there. The stream on which the old mill stood, now known as Cobb's creek, flows through what is now the southwestern outskirts of Philadelphia. The proposed reproduction will be made a gift to the municipality.

Nature's Changes.

The eastern slope of the Rockies was more humid in the Cretaceous and Tertiary than now, as one may judge by the petrified forests scattered from the Yellowstone park to Arizona, and the remains of holly, oaks, elms, chestnuts, sequoias, and other trees in the florissant shales of Colorado. In the Tertiary age the East and West were again united by land. But this was a period of successive uplifts and depressions. Areas became submerged and their forests destroyed. Other areas were subjected to severe changes locally. Erosion and other disturbances must have greatly modified the character, proportion and distribution of the species. Then came the Ice age, and forces re-established themselves.

CITY GIVEN GLASS WORKS PROPOSITION

Gasoline Tax and Drivers' License Law Discussed at Chamber of Commerce.

At the chamber of commerce meeting held Tuesday evening W. S. Graham and Thomas Poulas, representing the Poulas Cut Glass company, of Lancaster, made a proposition to the members to move their glass works to this city, provided the citizens give them a bonus and would also build and donate a factory building 35 by 125 feet, with ground room enough to build another structure of the same dimensions.

They stated the amount of bonus wanted. The matter was referred by President Sensenbrenner, to the executive committee for investigation. Earl W. Lutz is the chairman of this committee.

Paul R. Gingher, representing the Columbus Automobile club, also made an address on the Krueger bill, otherwise known as the Auto Drivers' license tax, and the Gasoline tax. By a vote of the members present, the first bill received the endorsement of the body. The other bill, was dissected and was endorsed as far as the two-cent tax was concerned, but with the proviso that the license tax on tags to be a $2 flat rate on all makes of autos. Mandatory auto insurance and speed traps were also discussed but no action was taken by the chamber of commerce.

In Memoriam.

Editor Union-Herald:—Mary Catherine, youngest child of Walter and Hattie Malone Hustin, was born in Jackson township March 1, 1913, and died January 13, 1925, aged five years 10 months and 21 days. Little Mary was sick only a few days with symptoms of appendicitis and all that human hands could do for her was done. Tuesday she was taken to Grant hospital Columbus, hoping that an operation might be a relief, but God knows best, she was called to be one of His jewels before the hour arrived for the surgical work. It is so hard for us to just fully understand why one so young and pure should be taken, but our Heavenly Father knoweth best. Mary was chosen while in her sweet purity and innocence to be one of God's precious jewels and O; help us Lord to be submissive and to say "Not my will, but thine O; God be done."

She leaves a loving father and mother, one brother and two sisters and a host of friends, for to know little Mary was to love her.

The funeral was held from the home Friday afternoon conducted by Rev. Mr. Gibson. Burial at Darbyville.

EXPEDITION TO HUNT FOR CRADLE OF MAN

Scientists Will Make Research in Mongolia.

Roy Chapman Andrews has gone to Unga to arrange for his next expedition into Mongolia, the Montreal Family Herald states.

When he comes back he will begin the task of assembling the loads of equipment that are now on their way to China. Already about forty crates have arrived, and the cars and trucks are due in a few weeks' time. The other members of the third Asiatic expedition, fourteen foreigners in all, as compared with the eight who formed the foreign personnel last year, will follow in due course.

The caravan will be started on its way to Mongolia some time in December. By starting at this time of the year it will have the best chance of missing the blinding snowstorms that beat across the Gobi desert in the winter months. On April 15 next year members of the expedition will set off, traveling in motorcars, and the entire party will assemble in the heart of Mongolia at a point toward the eastern end of the Altai range of mountains, where the expedition finished its work last year. It is expected that the cars, which are especially designed for this difficult trip, will reach the rendezvous almost at the same time as the caravan, which has of necessity to follow a circuitous route.

The expedition will then divide into four divisions, working west and south of the Altai. Each division will be entirely self-contained, and with the addition of new scientific groups, it is hoped in this way to do more comprehensive work than was done last year.

The aspirations of Mr. Andrews are well known in outline, but in view of the importance of the expedition may be interesting in detail.

"We are going to work on human evolution," said Mr. Andrews. "In the past we have tried to test the theory that central Asia is the point of origin of a great deal of the animal and reptile life of the world. But for twenty-five years it has been said that this region is also the birthplace of man. We have found that Mongolia and the central Asia plateau constitute the paleontological Garden of Eden. Why should it not prove to be the place where man originated? The new expedition will work on rocks of a later period than those which were worked on last year. Those rocks which yielded among other things the eggs of the dinosaur are of course too old to contain any evidences of man. This time we shall concentrate on the younger rocks." Mr. Andrews agreed that the task was like looking for a needle in a haystack; but, he said: "All the evidence points more and more strongly to the central Asian plateau as the birthplace of man, and this time we are bringing together all branches of science to assist us in bearing down on this one problem. We hope—only hope, mark you—that we shall secure some evidence at any rate to shed light on the problem of human evolution. In any case we are bound to return with many interesting specimens. The country where we shall work is the birthplace of so many different groups of animals that it is inevitable that we shall unearth some things of the utmost interest."

Up in the Air

One day, while driving in the suburbs with friends, a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune reports, I spied a balloon man about a block away.

"O, I must have a balloon for the baby," I exclaimed, and called frantically to the fast disappearing vendor, as I drove toward him.

At last he came running toward us. When he stopped, breathless, I decided to buy four balloons, one for each of my friends' children. The man had quite a time disentangling them, but at last I had them safely in the car. I opened my purse to pay him, and to my disgust found not one cent! My friends, also, after a hurried search, realized their bags were merely ornamental.

"With much embarrassment, I returned the coveted balloons to the accompaniment of disgusted mutterings from the vendor."

A New Angle

An ounce of observation is worth a ton of theory. Ike Mott says that back in the hills where he was brought up, hoopsnake races were a favorite sport. They'd start their snakes at the top of a hill and bet on which got to the bottom first. And the snakes would stop themselves by the simple process of letting go of their tails.

But how does this accord with the well-known fact that hoopsnakes stop themselves by striking the barb in the end of their tails into a tree? The tree always died, I believe, a hoopsnake's tail being poisonous.—Ted Robinson in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Strange Indeed

"Where have you been?" demanded her father.

"Out motoring with a strange young man," sighed his flapper daughter.

"For the love of Mike! Haven't I warned you never, never to go riding with a man you didn't know?" roared her dad.

"I didn't say I didn't know him. I have known him for years. I said he was a strange young man and he was. We went through some of the loneliest, loveliest spots, and he never once tried to kiss or hug me," she replied.—Cincinnati Enquirer

HOW LONE AIRPLANE WIPED OUT BOMBERS

Flyer's Story of Thrilling World War Adventure.

The true story of one of the most dramatic and daring exploits of the World war—the story of how a lone night-bombing plane manned by a British pilot and observer wiped out an airdrome and a whole fleet of German Gothas returning from a night raid on London—is told in McClure's Magazine by a British flyer and secret service agent. Writing under the assumed name of Tom Vigors, because of army regulations, he reveals closely guarded secrets of the allied airmen's thrilling adventures in night flying.

The two flyers, "Red" Whiteman and Teddy Parsons, pilot and observer respectively, had been ordered out on a night observation cruise up and down a certain sector north from Poperinghe to Nieuport. Crossing the lines, they sighted above the town of Ghistel three enemy Gothas sneaking along in the darkness about 2,000 feet below them. Ahead of these had passed two other enemy machines.

Easing down to the same height as the enemy planes, Red and Teddy joined the grim procession. All unsuspecting, they followed the raiders until lighthouse signals from the ground indicated that they were approaching the airdrome at Denis-St. Western, a well-known Gotha lair.

There they waited for the first four planes to land. Then, as the fourth machine loomed into the light from the ground flares and the last one was preparing to glide in, they attacked. Like lightning, their machine dived down, straight for the flares. The fourth Gotha made a beautiful target in the lights. Grasping the bomb releases, Red pulled, and in an instant the Gotha was wiped out. Meanwhile Teddy had been spraying the fifth German plane with his machine gun.

Elated by the success of their first dive, they now tore down on a group of airplanes huddled against the hangar, revealed clearly in the light of the burning plane. Red released four more light bombs right into the center of this group.

They turned again and passed above the hangars. Three more bombs crashed, and in a flash one end of the set of hangars was burning fiercely.

The job was done. What had been, less than five minutes before, a quiet well-organized airdrome, was now a blazing ruin, and air raids on London from this Gotha nest were interrupted for several weeks.

Rat Made Much Trouble

Houston Heights and other parts of Houston, Texas, that depend upon the Pasadena plant of the Houston Lighting and Power company for electricity were thrown in darkness recently when a rat walked into the distributing drum and caused a short circuit. It took thirty minutes for workmen to get the charred body of the rat from the mass of burned out wires.

Springfield, Ohio, Jan. 21.—(United Press)—The two suspects held in Springfield in connection with the shooting affair at Hillsboro Tuesday morning were identified here this morning as the pair who had done the shooting. The identification was made by Hillsboro authorities.

No Sound From Giraffe.

It is said by animal trainers that the giraffe has never been known to emit a sound of any kind. No matter what the animal may suffer when ill or injured, he remains silent. And scientists have advanced the theory that, because of the extreme length of the neck, sound is difficult or impossible for the giraffe.
